Our top priority is ensuring the safety of our visitors, staff, and surrounding community.

In an effort to promote ample access to fresh air, Bartow-Pell Mansion Museum’s gardens and grounds will continue to be open from dawn to dusk. We hope they provide a respite for you during these challenging times; and we ask you to do your part by practicing social distancing--maintaining six feet between you and other visitors.

However, to ensure the safety of our visitors and staff, and to support the City’s effort to promote social distancing, the mansion is closed to the public beginning March 13 and continuing until further notice.

The following events have been cancelled or postponed (TBD).

- An Afternoon Tea, March 21, 2020
- Conversations with Carlie, March 27, 2020
- First Friday, April 3, 2020
- Easter Egg Hunt, April 4, 2020
- John Hunter and His Neighbors; A Talk with Blake Bell, April 23, 2020

We will be assessing the health recommendations from the CDC and the Department of Health in order to make an assessment on future programming. Please revisit our website for evolving information.

As of today, our offices remain open and we plan to reopen the museum to the public on April 30, 2020 as scheduled. If you wish to get in touch with us before then, please send an email to info@bpmm.org

Bartow-Pell is so grateful to everyone who supports the mansion and gardens—thank you. We look forward to welcoming everyone back as soon as it is safe to do so.
